

REPLY ID: 2ve6

I reflect upon what you wrote - it dawns on me that alot of folks are less fortunate than us. I had reverently sought out adventure in my youth to.

One of my favorite things to do was explore trails, when we were camping in the rocky mountains. I would go off on my own- get almost lost some times! It was so exciting- a thrill of sorts... to see if I could get turned around and find my way back. i have a great sence of direction to this day.

Being a loner is not a bad thing :O) I to was one of those kids who could entertain himself. I would play by myself and didnt need to be kept entertained . Mom tells me that i would play for hours by myself - with my active creative imagination.

I laughed by your coment another time other planet :OP please feel free to eleberate on this!? Asume you belive in extra terestial life to ?

I think of the holidays with my big extended family as the holidays arive... Its a such a good time of year for family get to gethers. Still to date our big catholic family gets together at grandmothers for Christmas. We have a big turkey day meal... traditional pies etc. the works.

Lots to be thankfull for as the years pass... good memories, good times and I wouldnt change it at all.

Nice talking to ya Greenboy - feel free to write me at: 3872 fm 350 south
Livingston, Tx 77351

c.Thompson#999306