

The Need's Of Other's

March 4th

Where would we be if no one helped us? What if our parent's taught us absolutely nothing? What if our teacher's didn't teach us how to read, write, or solve arithmetic?

In the world of instant gratification that we live in, sometimes we forget all the help we've received along the way. Focusing on ourselves and addressing our needs is very natural.

The unnatural way of life is to have eyes always open to see others needs, ears to hear other peoples cries, and a heart open to feel other peoples pain. The same people who have helped us along the way possess this thought process.

So, if we have been helped, should we not also do the same to others? It's important to be mindful of the many times God has helped us help others. May we never forget the fact that every time we help pull someone uphill, we will find ourselves getting closer to the top of whatever mountain we're personally climbing.

Just for today, rather than pointing a finger at someone, hold out a helping hand!
