

February 22, 2014

Catastrophic Relationships

It's like everything that evolving around relationships is very tainted these days. You have a husband that has the best wife you can ask for. He undermines her, abandon her, treat her like crap, don't appreciate nothing she does, flirts with other chicks in her face, very stubborn to the wife. Then you have the wife who has a good husband. Does the same thing the husband does above to her man.

So the good mates get tired in leaves him or her. who don't gives a rat about them. Good mates stay single for decades working on self to make sure if they get into another relationship it will last.

Finally one of the good mates feel they are ready for love because they feel strongly on the inside about it. Well you meet your soulmate. In your heart, you can feel this is your soulmate. This is not what someone telling you. you feel it with a strong assurance in your heart. In your spirit you ~~have~~ falling in love with this person. There has never been no sex.

But the soulmate gets tricked into marrying another chick. So now the good single mate is still madly in love with the one who their soulmate. Good single mate look at other single mates but they are not her soul mate. The good single mate is madly in love with her soul mate who got tricked into marrying another woman

The good single mate can't let go of him because she really loves him. Most people would say honey move on. But when you know that is your soul mate it's not that easy.

When you have fallen in love with somebody you feel that God has ordained you to be with; it's not that easy to let go. So what do you do without disrespecting the new wife or husband they chose?

written by

Jennifer Johnson