"A Wonderful Visit."

Just spent the weekend, with a very beautiful intelligent, sweet loving woman. Who brightened my life, shining a little sun into it. She's just the type of woman that I've love to have in my life. Unfortunately - she's not looking for the something. Who could blame her? Not me, I explained to her, the hellish existence of my world. A world for which she would have to be willing to except.

I still enjoyed our visit, the hugs, the kiss (not passionate unfortunately) holding hands and the long conversation, especially today, we looked up, it was 2 P.M., an hour left to visit, and we hadn't even ate anything.

We have different goal's, different dreams, but maybe, just maybe she'll think about it a little bit more. hint hint.

I shared with her of what I'm trying to do right now, which is get my GED. and then go after a paralegal degree, through the Blackstone school of Law. As well as pursue other college Correspondence Courses.

Unfortunately during our visit, MR. Edwards the Assistant warden showed up with bad news, that due to my sentence I'm not able to participate in the Dept's GED course. so right now I've got to get to work at locating a spot, where I can pursue a GED. Course through Correspondence.

Girl, I know your reading this, thank you for the wonderful visit and beautiful memories. our photo is on my wall. Please take care of yourself, God bless all

Much Love

Ronnie
