

The Truth in Political Speeches Act (T.I.P.A.)

by Nate A. Lindell 27 March 2016

(anyone may republish this, so long as the author's name + blog are cited)

Remember when Bush, Sr. promised "No new taxes!" as part of his campaign, but then twice raised taxes?

Remember when Bill Clinton looked to us all from T.V. + said, "I did not have sex with that woman, Monica Lewinsky,"?

Now we have Trump + Bernie promising to end the horrible "free" trade agreements that gutted America's working class. And Hillary is promising... nothing specific.

Under T.I.P.S., which I propose be made a federal law, any elected official or candidate for office who promises to the public to do something but doesn't do it or who lies to the public would be guilty of a felony + automatically (if found guilty) be sentenced to five years in prison. And they'd have to do the sentence in one of the crappy pens, like Terre Haute's, not at an F.C.I. (medium security) or a camp or a softer pen like Tucson or Coleman 2.

I'm serious.

This Act will protect voters from the lies + false promises of opportunist politicians that is an assault on our democracy.

Imagine politicians having to be honest with us! Surreal, huh?

Voters will know what they're voting for. The government will actually be "by the people, for the people."
