

15 Long Years!

I'm sending a photo I took a few weeks ago. I look at myself and wonder where the hell has the young man gone to. A man who could smile and make it look normal. It felt so forced and weird standing there to get a non-prison ID photo taken. Prison has taken away a relationship with my kids, wife, family but it has given me maturity and sobriety. All at the expense of others, I became who I was supposed to be when I was born.
