

Short Story I wrote for my writing class

I tell myself not to panic as I start to hyper ventilate. Thinking to myself that I've finally done it and lost my mind. Crazy people see things and hear things but of course I fake it to the 9th degree. my mind keeps repeating the same sentence over and over "Be careful of what you wish for" The world is gone and I'm alone. I should be changing my underwear because I've pissed myself with joy but the black void outside my door scares me. After five minutes of deep silence I begin to hate the sound of my own heart beat. I have no one to blame for being a dick and I now know that I'm not strong enough to be alone.

world of imagination rules your reality.

- It doesn't make sense to me - pg 1

Let me be the first person to say that I deserved to have been sentenced to prison. I perpetrated the following crimes at one time, Burglary, Robbery, Assault with a deadly weapon, "Bottle" False imprisonment, stolen vehicle, arson of the stolen vehicle and when I got arrested I had a gram in a half of methamphetamine, I received a 27 year and 4 month prison sentence, 6 years doubled up to 12 years for the burglary because of a prior strike, the following are enhancements 5 years for a prison prior, 1 year for a prison prior for possession of a controlled substance, 4 years for use of deadly weapon a bottle, 1 year 4 months for the false imprisonment, 1 year 4 months for vehicle theft, 1 year 4 months for the arson of the stolen vehicle and 1 year 4 months for the possession of the methamphetamine = 27 years 4 months. I must serve 85% of my sentence no matter what programs I take or through good behavior will I get any time taken off

It doesn't make sense to me that some one can kill a person and get ~~15 years to life~~ <sup>15 years to life</sup> or ~~25 years to life~~ <sup>25 years to life</sup> and do less time than me. I've known two people who committed second degree murder and were sentenced to 15 years to life and did 15 years and have been released -

After serving almost 15 years, even with good behavior and going to groups I still have close to 9 years left. If I would have killed some one I would have gotten a shorter prison sentence, that doesn't make sense. I haven't received any write ups for bad behavior in almost 4 years and I've only received 5 write ups in 15 years. I go to church and I am on the following waiting lists for programs A.A, S.A.A.G, Prisons of Peace and hope to get into a mentor program here. I do a positive program because I want to change into a better human being.

I deserve to be punished for what I did but I just can't understand how someone who killed a person does less time than me. If you understand it will you tell me what I'm not understanding. Thank you

PS just this morning a man was paroled after serving 13 years of a 15 year to life sentence. How does this make any sense?
