

POETRY PROSE & CONDZ II

As I've done w/ previous issues of WODZ put together for this blog, I've made a couple of minor adjustments here & there in the layout to improve presentation. Because this is a zine, and not just a series of posts, it's important to keep pages consolidated under the post title of the zine — like Poetry, Prose & Condz Vol. II. However, I'm trying something different w/ this issue here.

I've created what I call "stand alone" pages, or excerpts, which are 3 or 4 pages from the zine that I'll post individually under their own post titles. You should be able to recognize these as a collection of 4 or 5 posts (next to the main title) w/ the same post dates. Also, I'll write the main title / zine @ the bottom of each stand alone page.

It's common for pages to go unnoticed within the closed pages of a dozen or so other articles, poetry, etc. of a zine. With this issue, there're new contributors w/ interesting backstories to their pieces who're writing for the first time. Not to mention the visual design/art layout by XYZZST. This is a visual issue for sure, doesn't copy well though. So it maybe a little hard to read some pieces.

(5.23@9P.)