Hey Emily, Thank you so very much for responding to my blog and for offering to help me. It's nice to know that there is still people out in the free world who are willing to help a prisoner try to turn his life around. I hope you found some of my work enjoyable or touching. The information about the site was provided by a gentleman who also read my blog. Apparently the site only offers advice and does not include the addresses of the agents. Sadly, most agents and publishers only want to be contacted by e-mail and I don't have access to a computer. I face many challenges trying to get stories published from in here. You see I am indigent which means the state only allows me 5 stamps, 5 envelopes, 1 pen and 25 sheets of paper a month. But I won't give up, I won't let them beat me. This is my dream and my mother and brother both believed I was good enough to succeed. Since they both died I have made it my "quest" to prove they were right. I am running out of options but I refuse to give up. Maybe you might be willing to contact some agents and/or publishers by sending query letters from me by e-mail? It is hard in here Emily, sometimes very hard, but when I received your comments in the mail it really brightened my day. You take care of yourself Emily and I hope you keep reading my blog. I try to send in something new every month.

Peace ☺
