

One step closer to a dream!

Nothing brings me more joy then to see my goal almost within grasp. I didnt even see it achievable until recently. A dear friend I met through writing this site decided to surprise me and she surely did! I'd have never thought someone would be so willing to try and help change the life of another by such gratitude in giving and im now half way there! ☺

I wrote in to this site because all I had was a glimmer of hope I would find someone that would like to help my dream and goal come true.

Its scary to know that I dont really have a place to go or clothes to put on my back when im released from this place and knowing if I had my license upon my release my odds of obtaining a successful job immediately would be so much more assured because of the experience I have in this field.

All I have left is $120.00, and ill be home free to reapply and get into this class for truck driving. im so very anxious and hopeful now and im reaching out to those of you who is inspired to help, to look up the site she's provided to see how you can help make it possible for me I know alot of prisoners use this site for ill intentions and they ruin it for those who wish nothing more then a chance to change their life for the better!!!

Id also like to say it would mean so very much to me then to have this opportunity with your help if I can get this taken care of in the next couple MONTHS THEN BY WINTER I CAN FINALLY BE ON THE ROAD TO DRIVING ONCE AGAIN AND BE READY!!!! if only you could SEE MY SMILE OF ANTICIPATION.

Thank you all for the slightest consideration I wish to share this journey with you
