

Transgender bathroom dispute

Now I know we are dealing with children. I feel their sexuality has nothing to do with anything. For instance if the child is born with female and male parts. The child is identified as a girl on the birth certificate. They should go to the girl bathroom. What does their sexuality has to do with the next child, school or anyone. (Unless something happen.) This should be confidentiality. These children are their to get an education.

~~That's what~~ This is what's important. No matter if it's a restaurant or business. What does their sexuality has to do with them using the bathroom. These are innocent babies, how could anyone mistreat them? With all this controversy going on about transgender children using a bathroom; that all the other children can freely use. Have anyone stop to think about how is this affecting the children mentally? These poor babies is already going through enough being different from all the other children. They already chained emotionally and mentally. Why add to their pain. Our job is to build people up not tear them down. If ~~you~~ everybody was made like you? Would this world be a better place? Think about it? These babies cannot help how they was created. Guess what they are special and unique. If people would stop judging, this place would be a better place to live in.

I briefly want to talk about the news clipping on TV about this subject. It was sad first of all But the news showed a grown man acting like a two year old having a temper tantrum in a meeting. ~~about it~~ I wish the anchor men could roll this tape back to let him see how foolish, he was acting. We all get angry about something. But when someone has to escort you out because you being loud and grasping your fist as if you're going to hit someone that is over the top. You're out of order.

My words of wisdom to the individual. It's ok to be angry. Valuable lesson I've learned. There is correct way to handle your anger. You can get a positive outcome in any situation. When you stay calm, ~~think about~~ set down and think about the course you need to take in <sup>that</sup> situation. Majority of the time you will come up with better solutions.
