

WORST OF THE WORST

1 of 4

¹worst \ˈwɔːst\ adj., superlative of BAD or of ILL 1 : most bad, evil, ill, or corrupt 2 : most unfavorable, unpleasant, or painful; also : most unsuitable, faulty, or unattractive 3 : least skillful or efficient
²worst adv., superlative of ILL or of BAD or BADLY 1 : to the extreme degree of badness or inferiority : in the worst manner 2 : MOST <those who need help ~>
³worst n. : one that is worst

We began these California On Blast segments in issue number 3 of The Write Or Die Live Project to highlight specific all time lows of the very system that gets away with calling other people things like, Worst of the Worst.

We are releasing a full Time issue Titled California On Blast as a supplemental strike that complements this NGR series because we've compiled so many real time facts, that we couldn't fit them all into the NGR series.

While The N-Word is keeping societies focus on ignorance and negativity, we forget that by default, prison populations and sectors of outer society are being conditioned to believe that they exist on some sort of higher moral standard than those who use the N-Word or those who are named, Worst of the Worst.

The stark irony is applied when we ourselves began to use phrases like this, while being conditioned to ignore that we are in fact included, in the second, Worst.

For example:

Attention all prisoners who are not on deathrow, condemned prisoners are called, "The Worst of you".

Society may not even understand that often times, the only difference between Manime prisoners and the condemned population is the failure of attorneys to achieve a plea deal, so now, does the definition of the word worst apply to you? I don't think so either.

for those willing to keep it all the way one hundred, the facts, in real time, can often reflect that some prisoners on the mainline have been accused of far worse crimes than a larger portion of the condemned population, so being called the 'worst of the worst, by the worst, must be as a direct result of inductive suggestive institutionalized disdain for people who have been condemned.' So, Wake up my Niggaz, we are still being misled to view each other negatively, by the State of California.

San Quentin State Prison's administration continues the practice of resistance towards any and all positive developmental projects that are generated from the condemned population, and not by way of any of the multitude of proselytizing programs afforded to non-condemned prisoners, yeah, I said, proselytizing.

a). One Man educated himself, wrote children's books to encourage innercity youth not to follow the path he took toward self-destructive behavior and street violence, yet, even before he was executed, the prison officials left no stone unturned to make sure that the man's positive gains made, was always met with harsh critique and resistance, with a snide disdain.

b). Another Man created an idea and movement that would allow prisoners to be living organ donors to even family members and matches that would save lives well beyond the traditional understanding of restitution and compassion, even as his own father lay dying from cancer. But because of the man's condemned status, the institution's Warden and public relations officer has even gone as far as looking the man in the face and telling him that his idea would never be worth the paper he wrote it on. What tho?

c).

A large group of Mexican Americans from Southern California demanded to be housed with fellow condemned prisoners, and to be treated equal in terms of exercise yard opportunities. The prison administration not only tried to silence them by moving them to an area of the prison that is totally covered by a rotting metal cover, and completely wrapped in golf-course screen that denies them access to direct sunlight, and equal program time and facilities, but also demands that each of them become jailhouse informants to be released from said harsh conditions of confinement.

d).

Another person wrote a program proposal for an in-cell mental healthcare based T.V. Channel for those interested in decreasing the suicide rate, and the unsuccessful suicide rate on 'condemned row'. He was told by a mental health care professional that although the program proposal was great and well written, the Bible says that some people are already doomed to die, and that the proposal doesn't have "the word in it", (meaning ZERO christianized credit)

The sexual orientation and condemned status of the writer of the proposal was also a factor stated to withhold and deny forward motion progress of the proposal to actual programming reality,

e).

A new generation of condemned youth have created their own self-published periodical and blog, this multicultural collective creative writing social awareness based movement is a historical first for the condemned population, seriously.

Developed from the mind of one wise young man, page after page, after page proves that the exacerbation of the hyper horrific imagery of the condemned population is created stigma based, and the source of that stigma is maintained by those with vested interest in maintaining leverage over society to be absolved from waging against inhumane treatment of people called "Worst of the Worst."

Prison officials have blocked out all access to the blog of this unique body of work, within the prison, for no other reason than the specific intent to keep silent all of the ongoing strides of a positive nature, by a subcultural section of a prison population denied a voice, or access to resources equal to what is human.

Why? because in California, nothing positive can happen in prison out of the Worst of the Worst, without prison officials hand of control associated with it, where nothing good exist on death row.

Television broadcast are loaded with positive based prison stories, but we never see any of these stories from the condemned population broadcasted, until, someone sets out on a mission to prove that there is such a thing as the Worst of the Worst.

— Worst exist