I Waited patiently"

dedicated to my son mother

by Justice White

No hard fee thanks for being not an father

Do many "endless" days and nights pondering to myself, how could the one love, that was mine, fall out of love, with me; it was hard to see, through blurry eyes as I told myself you've waited patiently

The sun rose again, I died again to thy self and realized that its never been about me, or my happiness its about our son; Jaizean De'mond White

Aka Jai Jai not selfish ambition, now

I listen, pay attention to life since I've grown, matured and don't blame "you" I waited patiently!
