But being an African American male, I truly sympathize with the BLM movement cause its crazy how affirmative action has cause people to finally take notice to what's being going on for decades, and truth be told, the Cops are gettin out of hand, but we as black people, been ~~out~~ trippin with "eachother", killin off eachother at an alarming rate and over trivial mess, so it starts with the core first, our communities making it safe for our kids to play outside, play a game of basketball without gettin caught up in a drive by, or get this somebody taking your life cause they feel threaten by you, and dont have enough courage to stand up for themselves like how can a (white) dude go in a church kill all those innocent people and they not seek the death penalty because he has no remorse for his actions that was premeditated murder case closed and still nothing! Its sad, and thats exceptable I love all people, Im not racist my lil boy is mixed, but its time to make a change, like Michael Jackson talked about in his song: Man in the mirror because when the cops stop (killin)? We as nation under (God) are we gone stop killing eachother at random, because I dont like you; Come on now Love unconditionally and never give up pray diligently
