

God I'm UNSURE AND Lonely

Hello everyone, I would like to talk about faith. I have been told repeatedly that my faith is insufficient for God to bless me as much as he wants to. The brother who keeps telling me this has support from not only several people in his family but also several pen pals, I hardly get mail from real people out in the free world and I haven't been able to go to commissary since 2007. God blesses me through my Christian brothers in prison with but a lot of guys think me a roach (bum) and look at me like I'm trash. I'm starting to feel bad about myself, am I truly failing my God and Savior. I don't need much, some coffee-soups and hygiene and God has constantly provided this for me and I am happy the Father loves me so much to do this. I take some of what I'm given and I give to someone who is in need. I am not a good Christian, I struggle in many areas but I know God loves me and I give him everything I am (all my flaws) everyday because I love my God. However, I am lonely and tired of being ridiculed because and I quote "no one out there loves me" or "if I was a true Christian God would greatly bless me". I believe all of this is an attack of the enemy but part of me wonders if I'm failing the Father in some way. God I love you and will praise you no matter my circumstance, this I swear. You have healed me of my mental illness and made my enemies feed me, you love me in my weakness and I know you will take everything the enemy means to harm me and turn it to my good. You are love and mercy and I'm so very glad you are in my life and my heart and nothing the Devil does will ever tear me from you. I love you all and pray that in sharing my life with you that it helps you. God Bless you and keep you all of your days.
