

Short Update

Hello readers,

Several months passed since my last blog. Time seems to torment me. The demands on my schedule are great. You may be surprised to learn life can be hectic in prison. Days fly by for those of us who take advantage of the opportunities.

My hours are filled with many positive activities. I work as a teacher's aide in the education department five days a week. I also participate as a member of the Christian Community. The various roles I am asked to fulfill in the body of Christ take up twenty or more hours a week. Finally, I am enrolled in College. My Associates in Science in Business arrived recently. My current classes are in Sociology and Psychology. I hope to obtain a double Associates of Arts degree in American Studies / Social and Behavioral science. I am prevented from seeking a Bachelors degree because of finances.

I hope to continue to post stories, essays, poems, and articles on this site in the future. Thank you for your interest, comments, and support.
