

In a house by the sea
she looks for me
its never me
who she seems to see I choose her from an ocean of time since past
but she holds against me
the sins of my past
I walk alone
as i wait there
waiting from dawn
to dusk in tears
Hope is fading
and still I hold on because she is the one
I choose.

Still she doubts
and shuts me out
stays away
and can't bear to stay with me again
because she'd rather
choose them
In a house by the sea
there I look for her
she never tried
and do I know
yes I know what she will do.

I don't doubt as I am prone to do
and still here I am waiting for who
all my hopes and dreams float on the water on the blossoms of
the higan cherry tree
