I would love to continue to write more but with my head so out of whack it's hard to find inspiration anywhere I look. I used to believe if you were truly good to someone and gave them the very best parts of yourself inspiration would be brought to life in that goodness. Now...I'm not so sure. i am in a world where I can't see the forest from the trees and the lies that surround me are as believable as truths should be. Maybe inspiration is found in the stars or in the waves of the sea.
