

Reply ID: 46v8

Makes

Your comment

I like hearing your hopefulness and I agree that we cannot give up. I will resist and protest, just as you have done.

Thank you for your encourage words. I got to tell you December is the hardest month for me. Because I lost everything. December was the last ^{Christmas} holiday me, my children and husband spent together. December 28, 1996 was the last time we all spent as a family. Early in the ~~week~~ week hours of the morning I found my son Joshua deceased in his crib, not breathing. It's like all hell broke loose in my home our children went to foster care, my husband, me and brother was arrested charged with felony murder and cruelty to children. No real evidence but just a bunch of circumstantial evidence. He / say / she say autopsy I think tho what happened, lies upon lies. The justice system failed us. When you are poor this is what happens. I often tell people to be thankful what you have. Because it's always someone has it worsens. I use to ~~be~~ take things for granted but not any more. I don't care if somebody gives me a bar of soap. Thank I am grateful. God will allow bad things to happen to good people. Cause some of us was humble. Always complaining post old me. So as December 28 approaches. I went through a shock period because I am the one who found my child in the crib deceased. ~~and~~ It's only by the grace of God I still have a mind. Cause all the things my family, little children (3) other children, my husband and my husband. We have went through a lot only by the grace of God we all still have the right mindset. It's been almost 20 years. Everytime we are about to give up on finding out the truth behind Joshua death. Or getting our legal case resolve. We encourage one another. There is no time to Give up. My encouragement for people in 2017 We got to stop complaining, ~~and~~ living in self pity and stop letting fear rule our lives. It's time to speak up, get more done in the government and our communities. Get some laws changed. Everyone should be treated equally. Take Care, Be Blessed

Reply ID: Ubr8 Mares

Jennifer