Dear Timothy:

We thank you for the insightful commentary. In response to your question, we have published the following blogs on RealCrimeBloggers, as well as our Facebook and Twitter accounts, and our Amazon Author Page:

- The American Criminal Justice System: A Cure-Arm position Page
- Damn The Torpedos!
- Media Fear Is A Dangerous Overreaction
- Massachusetts Off The Hook: "Gender Identity Surgery"
- The Killer Doc
- The Murdered Priest
- Dying To Get Out: Ongoing Massachusetts Suicide Crisis
- The Free Speech Warrior: Another Nice Little Win!
- Massachusetts Death Penalty: "Still In Full Force"
- The Gangster D.A. & Frankie Soffen
- Massachusetts Corrections Staffing Raito: Less Bang For The Buck
- A Disgrace And A Chance To Clean It Up

Our analytics show that they are being read, based on the amount of time visitors spend on pages where your blogs are located. Unfortunately, they are not leaving comments, perhaps because your commentary is deadly serious, documenting political malfeasance, revealing secrets and hypocrisy. Your central theme is ALWAYS the state of Massachusetts' criminal justice system, which is certainly more interesting and relevant to those it affects, Massachusetts' citizens.

"I" hear you loud and clear, primarily because I have shared many of the experiences you articulate, but our site visitors come to us mostly for entertainment, contemporary fiction, and astounding facts about crime and (in) justice. Our blog commentary' pages are auxiliary, developed to generate traffic to our site. First and foremost, we are publishers of ebooks.

We've provided RealCrimeBloggers and our free pen pal service as vehicles for prisoners to communicate with the public, but cannot guarantee an active readership. As our followers grow, I trust that yours will as well.

Sincerely,

Linda Agee, Associate Publisher
