1st Topic - New Quote I Coined

"Lady Justice died in America, giving birth to her two twins: Tyranny & Vengeance" - Myron E. Edwards, Sr.

"Tyranny" is a male, and he is wreaking havoc throughout the American government on all levels... including State governments. Nevertheless, Tyranny is a world-class traveler... he has homes in the Middle-East, where he instigates conflicts between long-time friends & neighbors and incite riots in the communities. All of Tyranny's innate actions at home and abroad, reassures a home for his twin sister "Vengeance" - whom nips at the heels of rich & famous men, under the red-herring notion of "feminism"... making it the word defining the year of 2017 (i.e. The Year of Rape).

- Questions:
- Is clandestine Tyranny better than overt Tyranny?
 - Should young America take lessons from much older societies, who keep their sexes separate in the public & private work sectors; while distinguishing themselves (i.e. America) by making the sexes still equal?

- Is a judge truly unbiased & a neutral party when they run their campaign on the premises of being supported by: Sheriff Associations, Police Associations, and favored by District Attorney's / Attorney Generals?
- Who truly denies justice: the judges or the citizens whom elect such judges?

Food For Thought: A rabbit should not walk into a wolf's den, and complain about the wolves trying to eat it — while holding the view: "I should be able to live in a den with them (i.e. the wolves) too." You can live in a den too and it can be equal or even better — why would you want to live in it with dangerous strangers though.

2nd Topic — Peer Pressure Is My God

For those whom do not believe in a God or Creator, but still consider themselves to be "good," "honest," and "law abiding citizens" — for the most part, how do you define yourself as such... what is the bases of your premise(s), if you are not doing or are doing something without consideration of the LAWS of God or a Creator?

What drives the sense of "right" or "wrong" actions or thoughts —

Amongst the ungodly? For the ungodly, the urges that you get to do certain things that you must hide doing... why do you hide them and think or feel that such actions are wrong? You may answer that morals make or break you, but I ask you to consider just how your morals were shaped & formed... Your answer would have to be, that society shaped & formed your morals — your sense of "right" or "wrong" actions and thoughts.

And this, my friends, is the epitome of "peer pressure". The ungodly claim not to want to be held to the rules of an "unseen" entity, while yet, confirming to the whims & notions of others (i.e. peer pressure).

Food for Thought:

- If you are being "bullied" on the inter-net/social media — then do not log-on... what you do not know, cannot hurt you!
- Without violence, checks and balances do not exist... the experience of a birth delivery is "violent", e.g. contractions, pushing out of the womb, etc. America did not become a super-power without violence.
