122314 Invictus Sol new cycle Rune pull ↑ Tiwaz

012915 Hostage

"The ↑ rune embodies the force ruled by the god Tyr, the Norse god of Law and Justice. The Tyr force is one of passive regulation. In northern mythology, it is this god who comes closest to a transcendental quality. These characteristics are exemplified by the major Tyr myth in which the god sacrifices his hand ("active abilities") between the jaws of the Fenris Wolf in order to save his fellow AEsir from destruction. Thus tiwaz is the rune of self-sacrifice and of Kings and great leaders of the people. The word tiwaz, tyr in old Norse, is the exact cognate to Sanskrit dayus, Greek Zeus, and Latin Ju-pter. A threefold mystery is contained in tiwaz: 1) Justice, 2) war, and 3) world-column. Certain aspects of all three aspects are intimately related in the runic cosmology. Tiwaz is principally the force of divine order in the Multiverse, and especially among mankind. But Tyr is also important as a "war god". This is because of the special judicial and spiritual qualities that were imparted to conflict by the ancient Northmen. An old Norse word sums up the aspect: vápnadómr ("judgement by arms: war"). Combat was seen as a struggle between numinous forces in conjunction with physical ones. Both of these are considered to be extensions of the same ultimate source: The man with the most numinous power (which is developed by right and honorable past action) will be favored by Orlog to win the struggle. Tyr rules over the administration of this form of justice, so he is invoked for victory and is therefore an important war god. Tiwaz is best known as a rune of the warrior. It was inscribed on the hilt of the sword to bring courage and honor to its wielder, and on the blade to instill it with Tyr's victorious might. Battle was thought of as a judgement, therefore the use of tiwaz made the warrior worthy, proving that he would be judged the better man, ensuring victory. Tiwaz also embodies the values of the spirit warrior, who must forever be willing to self-sacrifice in order for his folk as a whole to prosper. The spirit warrior must be Able to absorb all aspects of this rune and blend them together with discipline and stability. This rune has the power to strengthen a person in the physical realm by filling it with spiritual and moral force. It is used to obtain Supreme justice and is invoked for victory. Tiwaz develops the virtues of courage, strength and honor. It reminds you of your duty to the folk, and to always keep the best interests of the folk at heart. Tiwaz brings stability and keeps the wise-working forces of one's mind at bay. It brings about and maintains order. Tiwaz contains all that is right for the warrior on all levels. It contains the ability of objective judgement and fairness, the potential for handling yourself well in a conflict - with honor and a sense of righteousness. Justice can be expected, and good judgement based on a careful analysis of the facts. Victory will be yours if you have acted wisely. Strive to order the environment in a rational way, the path of success may lie through self-sacrifice, vigilance and hard work combined with knowledge are necessary. Reliability, loyalty, faithfulness, must be practiced, and can be expected. Strive for exactitude and precision - plan very carefully. Make your work methodical. This rune may indicate a Scientist or academic. Hail Victory!

"Noble Salutations. It took most of 2014, applying Effort with intention to establish a Sch. religious group in prison, here at MCSP. We are now an <sup>recognized</sup> entity growing exponentially with approx. 20 men signed-up — and about half that number actually attending with full attention at the half-dozen meetings we've had thus far. At this juncture we need all the support we can muster from outside orgs and missions, VM's, Pastors, et al, who cognize the potential of theta rehab for those of us who are exiled to penal colonies and stuck in stasis (2 mill and counting in US). There is no better place than Here! There is no better time than Now!

Something CAN be done about it — indeed! ARC-KRC
