Awesome! Sometimes I wonder if anyone gets me, ya know? Thank you for your feedback. I'm so glad you got it. My whole Life is Art, for some reason — producing Actions for others to interpret as they're able... to think. Imagine being a degraded hierophant in a complacent culture of mediocrity. OMG! I'm rarely ever understood — but I leave clues, nevertheless. I'm so blessed in the aesthetic realm, I can't help but project my blessings into the noosphere hoping to inspire someone — somewhere. In Latin, the term is: Obscurum per obscurius. So you'll understand why I'm so happy that you got it. Attaboy Calhoun — good for you.

MIA-smic, indeed! The status quo of mediocrity is a stench which I can't stand. Sometimes I do put on a burlesque show to express my contempt for what others will permit in their environment. Fortunately I'm a 6'4", 240 lb. genius thespian, sometimes projecting F.E.A.R. (False Evidence Appearing Real) to challenge spectators to have a point of view — judging them. Admiration, by the way, is all I'm really looking for. "I SEE You" (or rather: I see through you), is the greatest confirmation that Homo Sapiens still has sapience within their grasp. Bestial folk on the other hand, miss the point and initiate demagogic campaigns, making me a star-attraction. I love it! A Martyr does not usually ever get to grow a gray-beard.

"Standing heroically without fig leaf" — "multitudinous possibilities", Dude! You get it! BE who you are... meant to be. To BE or not to be... you see?

In re: Consumer Society. Being a 'consumer' is the antithesis of BEING a CREATOR! Quoting the cretin Kierkegaard: "Truth is subjectivity", isn't convincing when I consider the definition of Subjective 1: of, relating to, or constituting a subject: as a: relating to, or characteristic of one that is a subject esp. in lack of freedom of action or in submissiveness, or; 3a: characteristic of or belonging to reality as perceived rather than as independent of mind. You see, in a mediocre Society, Truth may well be subjective — as interpreted by mediocrity. But in John 8:32 we see TRUTH is the exact consideration of what is — which makes one free. Being subjugated by common-ere reality, just doesn't work for me, you see.

The Evolution Game

*Some men see things
as they are and say,
why; I dream things that never were and say, why not.*

Robert Kennedy

*Sometimes I've believed as many as six impossible things
before breakfast.*

Lewis Carroll

Ever felt overwhelmed by fear and worry? Considering possible obstacles and undesirable outcomes in a spirit of inquiry can sometimes aid in envisioning better paths and creative solutions in advance. But allowing thoughts to spin unchecked down the rabbit hole of negativity disables the voice of inspiration, impeding the flow of good.

The downward spiral is the cue to let your survival brain take a bow, invite your mind's frontal lobes to take center stage, and play The Evolution Game. Playing is as simple as clicking off the TV or internet (always simple, not always easy). In earliest usage, evolution meant a switch in formation, like a twist or turn in a dance. So, infuse your body with a conscious breath and, with dancer's mind, twirl your thinking in a new direction. Remember a time when Life sustained and lifted you in a choreography of loving grace and flow. Your remembering soul spreads its wings and soars on the winds of divine potential.

You can each morning align yourself with evolution in its activity of blossoming and unfolding. In your keeping is a sacred scroll of high expectations and desirable outcomes, depicting all the ways that your own affairs and those of your beloveds work together for wholeness and fulfillment. Unroll that scroll in your mind. Your internal unfoldment of magnificent possibilities will attune your mind to gratitude and creative wisdom, inform your conversation, weave wondrous solutions, and inspire your actions.

Can your worries grow outrageous in forecasts of dystopian futures? Then imagine wildly optimistic utopian possibilities for a world where messages of dynamic compassion, peace, and harmonizing love are the mainstream broadcast. In visionary play, co-create with Spirit by welcoming Life's quantum evolutionary leaps.

Awakening Through the Stages of Spiritual Growth

The seven levels of soul awareness represent stages through which we awaken to full enlightenment. Until settled in God-consciousness, various characteristics representative of the levels may be present. To facilitate spiritual growth, renounce psychological characteristics which are restrictive and cultivate states of consciousness and behaviors which are consistent with your highest ideals.

FULL ENLIGHTENMENT – Complete knowledge-realization of God and of universal processes. Liberation of consciousness. When meditating, realization is transcendental. When relating to mundane realms, full enlightenment remains undiminished and all actions are appropriately spontaneous.

GOD CONSCIOUSNESS – Partial or complete knowledge-realization of God with transcendental realizations to follow. Even if mental restrictions persist, their influences are weakened and will be removed. Insightful actions prevent the accumulation of further conditionings. At this level, even with further realizations to unfold, one is liberated from delusions and attachments.

COSMIC CONSCIOUS – Partial or complete knowledge-awareness of universal processes and realization that the universe is a play of cosmic forces. When meditating, perceptions and realizations are transcendental. Comprehension of Primary Nature: the Word (Om), cosmic particles, space, and time. Normal activities and relationships are enjoyed with higher understanding.

SUPERCONSCIOUS – Partial or complete Self-realization. Knowledge-experience that one is a ray of God's consciousness. When meditating, higher superconscious states unfold, allowing perceptions and realizations of God and transcendental realities. Ego-sense diminishes with increasing Self-realization. Normal activities and relationships are experienced without compulsion.

FUNCTIONAL SELF-CONSCIOUSNESS – Healthy-minded, superior human conscious condition. When meditating, the major purpose may be to elicit the relaxation response and experience psychological and physiological benefits only. Normal activities and relationships are rational, nurturing choices. Actions are performed skillfully. Some intellectual understanding of God may be present.

DYSFUNCTIONAL SELF-CONSCIOUSNESS – Mental confusion and conflicted emotional states are common. Egocentricity prevails. Meditation may be practiced in the hope that a degree of inner peace may result. Illusions are common: also attachments, dependency, addictions, and self-defeating behaviors. Actions are irrational and behaviors are unpredictable. Neurotic needs, complaints, blaming, and irresponsibility are common—as are fantasies about everyday matters and higher realities. Subconscious influences dominate mental and emotional states.

UNCONSCIOUS – Mental dullness, apathy, and boredom are common. The physical body is assumed to be the real being. Awareness of spiritual matters is absent. If religious, prayer is usually directed to a conceptualized form or aspect of God. Normal activities and relationships are routine, as necessary or as one is inclined by desire or whim. Intellectual powers are limited. Memories, habits, and learned or acquired behaviors dominate lifestyle. Small-mindedness and self-righteousness may be dramatized.

Every soul eventually awakens from unconsciousness to Self-knowledge and realization of oneness in God. Personal aspiration to spiritual growth is a helpful influence to this end. The soul's innate inclination to awaken is a determining factor. Right living and spiritual practices speed up the process.
