

The Inner Racism with your own race.

For so long we have viewed and talked about Blacks and white racism. There has been longevity of races against their own race. I am African American, I am going to talk about my own race. I've noticed with my race we have been horrendously divided for long, long, long time.

- (1) Black on Black crime
- (2) no respect for each other
- (3) very treacherous against one another
- (4) drag your own race down by persecuting them
- (5) put your own race into a jail or prison quickly to get rid of them because you are secretly jealous of that individual you want something bad to happen to them (ill will)
- (6) We get into high position then you look down on your race. But you forgot that you didn't always set on your throne.
- (7) Our black families are so divide it, just crazy. Sally been mad at Aunt Lisa for decades, don't want nobody in the family to deal with her. Treat her like she has ~~leprosy~~ <sup>A</sup> disease that is not curable. you go to the family reunions everybody got a problem with somebody. All you get eye rolling. I don't want to sit near her or him. I am not going to talk to her. Secret conversation on the side about Auntie Stella, Honey she ~~that~~ thanks

She is all that because she is a retired teacher, has the best home and car. The same goes on in our in our African churches. Instead of pulling one another up. We are stepping on one another in every way. In our communities, churches, family, job, prisons, jails and relationships.
I see blacks literally knocking each other out the way so they can get that spotlight.
We need to do better. Why can't we shine together?
