

Think about this:

Could somebody help me to understand why Washington State Prison and Metro State Prison was closed only to be reopened to men in the State of Georgia. The female has only Whitworth, Emmanuel, Pulaski and Alto State Prison. Whitworth and Emmanuel is like a Pre release institutions. The main Prison for the women Alto and Pulaski is getting to filled up. Not enough beds. Overcrowded. Troubled inmates that are close security. Metro State Prison was the institution for the close security female inmates. When it was open back up, why didn't it get reopened for the close security female inmates? Cannot say the staff is the problem because the male inmates are there. They have to have guards. The male inmates have almost 40 prison in the State of Georgia. Why couldn't the female close security could not be housed back into Metro State Prison?
