

Aura [fr. L. puff of air, breeze] 1. a subtle sensory stimulus (as an aroma), b: a distinctive atmosphere surrounding a given source 2. a luminous radiation

- 4. an energy field that is held to emanate from a living being.

cf. Aurora 3. a luminous phenomenon that consists of streamers or arches of light appearing in the upper atmosphere of a planet's magnetic polar regions and is caused by the emissions of light from the atoms excited by the electrons accelerated along the planet's magnetic field lines.

- Aura, A subtle invisible essence or fluid that emanates from human and animals bodies and even things. It is the psychic effluvia, partaking of both the mind and the body, as it is the electro-vital, and at the same time an electro-mental aura: called in Theosophy the akasic or magnetic aura.

Akasa, The subtle, supersensuous spiritual essence which pervades all space. It is, in fact, the Universal Space in which lies inherent the eternal Ideation of the Universe in its ever-changing aspects on the planes of matter and objectivity, and from which radiates the First Logos, or expressed thought.

(The Akasa is the indispensable agent of every magical performance - religious or profane. The expression "to stir up the Brahma", means to stir up the power which lies latent at the bottom of every magical operation. The power of Akasa - occult electricity, the same anima mundi on the higher plane as the astral light on the lower).

Anima Mundi, The Supernatural essence which permeates, animates and informs all, from the smallest atom of matter to man and god. The essence of seven planes of sentience, consciousness and differentiation, moral and physical. In its highest aspect it is Nirvana, in its lowest Astral Light. When it is said that every human soul was born by detaching itself from the Anima Mundi, it means, esoterically, that our higher Egos are of an essence identical with it, which is a radiation of the Universal Absolute. Alas;

- Religion [fr. L. religio - supernatural constraint - to restrain]

Astral Light (Occult). The invisible region that surrounds our globe, as it does every other, and corresponding as the second Principle of Kosmos (the third being Life, of which it is the vehicle) to the Astral Double in man. A subtle Essence visible only to a clairvoyant eye, and the lowest but one (viz, the earth) of the Seven Akasic or Kosmic Principles. Eliphas Levi calls it the Great Serpent and the Dragon from which radiates on Humanity every evil influence. This is so, but why not add that the Astra Light gives out nothing but what it has received (via Noosphere influence); that it is the great terrestrial crucible, in which the vile emanations of the earth (moral and physical) upon which the Astral Light is fed, are all converted into their subtlest essence, and radiated back intensified, thus becoming epidemics — Moral, psychic and physical Ergo, the aura of a man is called the "Magical Mirror of the Universe"; and, so far as anyone can tell, nothing exists outside of this mirror.

Universus sum et Nihil universi a me alienum puto. [Lat. "I am the universe and I think nothing in the universe foreign to me"].

LOGIC #5: A definition of terms is necessary to the alignment, statement and resolutions of suppositions, observations, problems and solutions and their communication.

It's all SUBJECTIVE, isn't it? Please tell me,
What does MORAL EMANCIPATION mean to you?

As always,
William

P.S. Temperance (the 14th major arcana of the Tarot, originating in necessity, and complementing Justice); The Great Work requires it, I understand. Will creates Karma, which influences the power of Will. Beautiful, isn't it?
