

MAKES IT PERMANENT

DEAR LYNNE SPINOZA:

I was recently made aware of your posted comments from several months ago, and even though your post is considered "past tense", the positive energy in your words still resonates with me in the present.

Words are powerful. Words are eternal. Words spoken is a gift for your eardrums, and words written is a gift for your eyes. Positive words provides ease to your mind, and warmth to your heart.

At a moment when thoughts of hopelessness, and despair began to tap dance on the corners of my mind, your positive words reminded me that hope is necessary, because being defeated is only a temporary condition. Giving up is what makes it permanent.

PEACE -N- BLESSINGS,

TROY

PS: You asked if it was okay to write me directly, and the answer is YES - send a letter to my facility.
