

dipd

Love Note

New Years Eve 2018

My Dearest Love:

12/31/18

There are times that I feel that nothing is real when everything is just fading away. But never with you my love, with you life has always been real - the pain and the joy, more joy than pain. The smile on your face when you look my way has never faded away - the warmth I feel from your heart is like that of a summer's midday sun - your laughter always sounding like the song birds in the nearby creekside trees filling the air with the music from so many gone by years. Another year has past my love and we still sing together. We have learned some new songs along the way as some of our old songs have faded into the wind. But what's it matter - the words to these songs are always the same; it's the background music that continues to change. Your love is always within me, my arms always around you as we stare into each others souls. A million tomorrows will each bring us back all our yesterdays where our hopes, our dreams will go on forever. There is only one thing I want to say today - the same thing I said yesterday, the same thing I said in the beginning, the same thing I will say in all our tomorrows. I'll love you forever and ever. So keep my heart in yours and take good care of it - yours will be safe within mine as long as it shall beat. It has always been yours.

I'll Love You Always
Forever + Ever
Your Stone