Dear Drawing A Wider Circle,

Upon reading your recent message, I realized there was good reason to be thinking to myself that your name sounded familiar. Then, when I saw your use of the word ' bloke ' everything clicked together. If I'm not mistaken, it was early October of 2017 that you left a message that informed me of the fact that you were from Europe. I never sent a reply to that message, because you had no questions, and seemed to just have the desire to leave a friendly compliment regarding my writing. However, this time I thought I might just go ahead and leave a bit of information for you and perhaps see if you can give me some information as well.

First let me just say that my stories regarding my seizures are going to continue in a series of one full draft on my tablet on an average of once every two weeks. I'm already four drafts ahead and I still have more to share. You are absolutely correct in your last statement of prison being a terrible place to have a seizure.

Now, time for your possibility to inform me. Naturally, I'm limited to what's actually happening at your end of town, so I was just wondering what your feelings are regarding the BREXIT.

Well, keep checking in for my new additions and thanks for your comments.

MaZe
