

THE POWER POSSESS BY LOVE

INTRO: Have you ever fell in love with someone you truly didn't know, and yet they made it easy for you to love them? That person came into your life, and open'd a side of you that you didn't know was there. They began to challege you on a daily, and by doing this they made you a better person. But because you didn't know what love was you might've loss out on the chance to tell that individual how you felt, and now you wish you could turn back the hands of time, and say what you wanted to say for so long. (WELL YOUR NOT ALONE) REAL TALK ALWAYS.

I found myself in a situation like this myself, and like most i didn't utilize the time i had with her to tell her how much she meant to me. It wasn't suppose to be anything other than a teachable friendship. But she stole a part of me, and took me on a roller coaster ride. She (Ashton) had just went threw a bad relationship, and was being abuse daily by the coward who claim to love her. She was stripped of her beauty, and sense of self with ever blow. She began to loath, and hate herself on a daily. Using the words of self hate discriminate against herself. No longer a strong queen, now she believes that she was not worthy of love. She has no sense of self-worth, and believes that she is nothing, and deserves nothing. But yet after a few conversations with me you could see her light come back into her eyes, and she felt alive. I saw her transform in front of me, and then began to change me. I was able to tell her briefly how i felt about her, never had a chance to explain what those feeling where. But i saw a change in her when she knew how i felt about her, and just like that she was gone. Now i'm force to sit here, and think about her, and wonder if she felt the same about me. I hope she remembers that her worth, and validation on this earth comes from noone but her.

FINAL THOUGHT: Remember that you only get one life, and you should utilize that life to express your feelings, and wants. Never be afraid of opening up because you may only get one chance, and for some they get a second chance to make things right, but why wait. Why wait for tomorrow to start what you can start today.

MY LAST WORDS: A EDUCATED WOMAN, EDUCATES THE NATION. IF YOU'RE READING THIS BELOVED I TRULY CARE ABOUT YOU, AND WANT TO GIVE US A TRY.

REAL TALK ALWAYS