

ntkg

CAVAK,

Thank you for your interest in my blog. I appreciate all the hard work transcribing it for others. I did not know the blog would be posted as images, and honestly, even if I had known, would not have realized others could not view them.

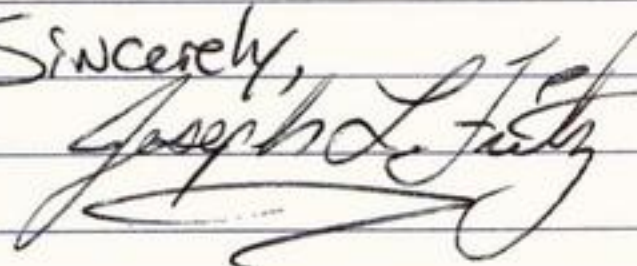

I have requested "Between the Bars" to delete my current blog, so I may start fresh. I was in an odd place in my life at that time, and would like to begin an active, current blog.

As you can see, I am still incarcerated. I am not eligible for parole until 2028. Not long now, everything considered. I am currently attending a bachelor-level seminary here at Darrington - though I remain staunchly non-Christian. I will receive a BS in Biblical Studies in 2022, and will have the opportunity to help others get their act together.

Yes, I still write. In addition to the many academic papers I do, I still work on fiction, my games, and many other things. In addition, I am establishing a workbook of sorts for incarcerated writers especially, since we face many restrictions those who are free do not. I rarely have writer's block, but when I do, I typically just work on something else, or go to my outline and rework things, or brainstorm, etc. Sometimes I just make myself write to get over the hump.

Do you write? If so, or even if not, feel free to reach out to me. My address will be at the end of this, or you can use JPAY.com (Joseph L. Fritz #00688064). If you are overseas, this option will be much faster. Maybe we can exchange some writing ideas.

Take it easy, good to hear from you!

Sincerely,

Joseph L. Fritz 688064
Darrington Unit
59 Darrington Rd.
Rusharon, TX, 77583.