

"Growing Awkward"

LIVING in this skin has been awkward
As a boy I grew with others insults
Grafting thier bruising into my conscience
Should I continue being tormented
My body has always been boyish
Thin & undesirable by girls
With a long gated head
I took shelter under a floppy hat
My body grew on an uneven scale
Arms & legs that were not twins
And a penis that curves to the left
How did I ever manage to adjust -
To this frankenstein body
Now that I'm old things did change
I can now see
That God had instilled beauty within me
How awkward it was not knowing
