When I first posted this, I never dreamed that within weeks -- I would have you in my life -- that you would change EVERYTHING, giving me not just hope, but purpose.

Today is our third month anniversary!

For three months I have had you in my life, and I am extremely lucky! I don't feel that you will love and move on. In my heart, I know that you are sincere. I somehow knew that somewhere out there in the world, there was someone for me that I just hadn't met yet; and somehow, Fate has brought us together. Despite my circumstances, you are here, you want me, and are willing to deal with whatever we have to so that we can be together. It's all like a dream, one that I'm not going to want to ever wake from.

You are right, there is a "good place", and each day that we are together -- you are showing me where it is.

I love you.

Your Hubby,
John
