

Date: 8/11/2019 2:34:43 PM

"CAN'T"

I've heard a lot of guys say we can't accomplish this or that. And to that I say, can't never could do a damn thing. For can't was defeated before it tried. That word can't, is a word I truly dislike. Because its a word for those who don't won't to try. Without failure, you don't understand and appreciate the true exhilaration of success. We all fail and fall short in life. But it doesn't mean you just give up and quit. No it means you fight harder to succeed.

A lot of people have been commenting about what I've been writing, and about how brave I am and that more people need to do this ect. Its true most of these guys fear retaliation. And their not going to speak out or try to bring about any change. I've come to expect that. Guys are solely focused on Me, Me Me! Rather than trying to do something for the over all good of all of us. But its not just the guys in here. The visitors, I've heard them ,make comments, I'm not fighting for anything else, because no one else will do it. They don't appreciate it ect. That's just another excuse to lay down and not stand up for what's right. What's right is right, and what's wrong is wrong. You don't need other people to validate you, and what you stand for. You don't need praise for doing what is right. Sure its nice, but the accomplishment from achieving a goal, that's a joy that you find from within that no one can take, and you'll always have. Each journey starts with a single step,some times its your step, that leads others to take their first step. Actions always speak louder than hollow words. Many talk the talk, few will walk the walk. When someone sees you standing up, for the struggle for what is right, it has the possibility to cause a chain reaction. Yes actions speak louder than words. And can't...yeah it never could do anything. Your one person, and you can make a difference!! Do you want to make a difference?Then stop with the excuses, and do it! We need change, and you can be a major factor in bringing this change,and revamping the Florida Department of Corrections. Some can, some can't some will some won't. I can and I will! What are you going to do?

In peace, love and friendship Ronnie

Ronald W.Clark Jr. #812974