Hey what's up? I hope that this is received with good tidings. I am just about finished with my book I had to retype it and now i am making a copy for later use in the future. But of course it was a bit frustrating to realize that there were a bunch of chapters missing. I know that once its done it will be worth it. the problem i was having is trying to find the funds to raise for me to uput it on the site for booklocker. i researched everything for that and like it because they sound legit but I can't afford even the cheaPest package because of my current forced unemployment LOL but if you know any avenues or aides out there let me know. I wish i even had access to a computer so that I could set up my own media page without having to pay for it just to advertise the book itself. It would be great. Anyhow, yes i have started classes and am working on the one for electrical. I am enrolled in another semester of college and I have been really trying to do what i can to graduate before I see parole again in February. i hope everything turns oput better soon because right now its really stressful. Well Take care, hope to hear from you soon.
