

Man suspected of shooting deputy, trooper surrenders

Van Buren, Mo - Authorities say a man ~~suspected~~ suspected of shooting and wounding two law enforcement ~~officers~~ officers has surrendered after a seven hour stand off in Southern Missouri. The Missouri State Highway Patrol announced around 5pm Friday in a tweet that the stand off had ended. Patrol Cpl. Dallas Thompson says it began when gunfire erupted as two troopers and a Carter County deputy were approaching a home to serve an eviction notice. The deputy who was hit in the leg, groin and chest, was pulled to safety by one of the troopers. He was flown to St. Louis for treatment for injuries that aren't considered life-threatening. The other trooper was shot in the shoulder and his bulletproof vest and was released from a hospital after receiving treatment. The shooting came two days after six Philadelphia police officers were shot and wounded during a stand off as I said last week we are dealing

With copy cat. My question is what type person are we dealing with in this situation. Why didn't this man pay his rent? Well he getting ready to have a home. Right in the people prison for a stupid crime, that don't make any sense. No crime makes any sense. This man needs to be posted as the dumbest criminal. Another case of a gun in the wrong hand.
