

M - RALLY

One of the things I want to do after being released from prison, is to get back into Rally racing once a month. Begin hosting events!

I enjoyed the 2003-04 and 2004-05 seasons that I raced in the SCCA (Sports Car Club of America), G2 (front-wheel drive class), using a modified Honda Civic Si hatchback stripped out and set up for full race.

I'd like to set up my own SCCA cuicuit: "M-Rally". Build a set of custom Rally tracks in South Carolina, and surrounding states, that would bring in racers from all over, even from across the globe. One of the courses I raced regularly in Georgia, north of Atlanta off I-75, had brought in racers from as far away as Australia - mine could maybe do the same.

I like the idea of each car being completely street legal, and having to be driven from course section to course section on regular roads (and not be carried by trailer). The car here is sporting a paint job that I dreamed up as an example of M-Rally car labeling: Each M-Rally car, regardless of make, model, or color, having to sport the same stripes and number style. Who knows, maybe someday people will see some variant of this M-Rally car driving on the highway next to them -- making its way to the next course section.
