

July 26, 2020 @ OSCl

Hey peoples!

It's that time again...for ridiculous heat waves! Yeah! Brought to you by Global Warming under the joint sponsorship of China, India, and the good ole U.S. of A. As I write this I'm sitting about 5' away from an industrial floor fan and am still sweating.

"Thru the glass, doves sit and bathe,
Blissfully unaware of the joy they gave,
And then away, momentary and vague,
Never looking back, no remembrance saved."

Sorry, got a bit distracted. Can you guess by what? Heh. I'm definitely melancholy today.

I'm continuing to try to work on my cases. Between my depression and the heat its virtually impossible. Ever have those days when you just want to stay in bed and sleep? I go through a lot of those.

I guess in part because I love my dreams. I can be anyone or do anything although I usually just let things play out. The other night I dreamed of a good looking guy and I walking along, just holding hands and talking. Does it mean I'm ready to date again? Or just stay platonic? Guess it could be either or just that I'm lonely or nothing.

All I know is that for a short while, I was content. Another thing that's in short supply around here.

Well, I'm cutting this short today so I don't short out my tablet with sweat.

In reliance on something better coming,
Tony