The Return of Humanity

Last year, Young Baby Bro Melvin took me back about 27 years when he said;

"Hey, remember that day You kicked me out of the Studio?"

I was like, "No, I never kicked You out, I was simply telling my lil 5 year old bro that I was about to lay a vocal track for a rap I had been working on."

My Young Nephew Marlon set up the VHS Cam, and I called myself becoming all of my favorite Rappers at one time, Eight Ball the nigga I love the most, ds BMP, Merce/Dews, My Cuz Reese, and ds Kid.

I titled the song, "The Return of Humanity", then I added my own singing vox, and was like, YEP. I think Eight Ball is the only one that has heard this song until now, oh, and other homies in the VENT, Over the Mike, and in Holding Tanks, the Court Bus, and The Yard where true Rap lives.

Gson put a Killmonger type Beat on it, went NEW Media 3.0 on the visuals and I'm told it looks and sounds like the inside of My head, from those that have been in my head.

I'm no rapper, but for whatever reason, most of my heart is made up of memories of my past life when I was most focused, and at peace, with my crew who was mostly made up of Masters of Ceremonies, NEW, there will never be another 1990's in Hiphop, and I want my folks to all hear themselves in this track, find each other's phrases and styles and, damn, I miss Yall, YEP, so, not a Brag rap about myself, this is about Yall.

Now that 5 year old Melvin is a grown ass man, he can see this video and hear me speak. My heart, even now, from the bottom of this Starship, YEP, because this is the Return of Humanity, which we all could use alot more of now-a-days, glad Yall posted this video.

Shotout to Young Dennyboi for setting up to help us out as a Content donor @SMS from danie(rainey) YouTube, you are so the King of my heart, my young genius, give my love to DelMatik, NEW Media 3.0
Thanks to the folks @Shadowscribe for including my voice in your work, I'm so honored, and thanks to Between the Bars, DJ Jules, and WRITE OR DIE LINES for projecting my voice.
