

A year ago I wrote Happy New Year!, for 2020.

Boy, did that one turn out wrong. Try again?

Happy New Year!!

It's 2021 now... can we all get a break?

I have an idea. We can't really control a lot of what happens in any given year — the coronas, the murder hornets, etc. Maybe, though, we can all decide, within ourselves... can we all just resolve to do what we can do, in small, everyday ways, to make this new year better? At any little point, on any given day, just consciously decide to be a little bit nicer, a little more compassionate, a bit more understanding — especially of those we basically disagree with or dislike for some reason — than we otherwise would've been?

Give it a thought, anyway. Seems to me the droplets might add up to a Flood, if we each did just one thing a little bit better. ☺