Humanities Through The Arts was the most interesting and challenging for me of the three classes I took in the Spring semester. My heartfelt THANK YOU to the tax-payers providing me this opportunity to understand the impact of Art throughout history. This class was truly an enlightening experience.

Sociology - Introduction to Marriage & Family was interesting enough — and I absolutely learned a lot about what I didn't know about marriage and family. The whole time I studied this, and the following course, I understood that I was being enculturated — then I realized it was about time.

This class should be requisite before a marriage license is issued to any couple planning to marry and have children.

Cultural Anthropology was another enculturating class I struggled with - like a wild Maverick. At last though I have a greater appreciation of diverse cultures.

I regret that I didn't pursue higher education earlier in life - when I was being acculturated to this criminal sub culture. But then again, look at me now. That which doesn't kill us makes us stronger.
