* SOMEWHAT INTERESTING FACTS ABOUT PRISON *

- 1.) When you first get to prison, beware of the first guy who comes up to talk to you. This guy wants something, and by being new you are probably IT.
- 2.) You will never know the condition of someone's mental stability, until you have shared a cell with him.
- 3.) No matter how many pairs of handcuffs, leg irons, or waist chains you have on, you will find a way to scratch an itch -- no matter where it may be.
- 4.) There isn't near as much snitching going on as people think. The idiots are just too damn stupid to realize that they keep doing things that get themselves caught.
- 5.) You will meet people who can call up every Super Bowl game ever played, recite all the plays and player's statistics, but can't get their GED.
- 6.) To obtain a cigarette, a person in cell A will make a deal with the person in cell Z. Though the cells are locked -- and a hundred feet apart -- the cigarette will make it from cell A to cell Z without any help from anyone outside the cells.
- 7.) You can find yourself hating someone you know absolutely nothing about.
- 8.) You'll be amazed at what can be hidden under a shirt.
- 9.) Being asleep can be the greatest thing you ever experience.
- 10.) There are 7,962 ways to prepare a Ramen Noodle Soup.
- 11.) Regardless of the extent of the injury or ailment, you will have trained medical personnel look you in the eye with complete seriousness, and try to convince you that Ibuprofen will correct the condition.
