TO THOSE OF YOU WHO THINK YOU'RE HAVING A BAD MONTH

Unfortunately for me, just when I think things are going decent in the prison system there will be one of those out of the blue situations that make no sense whatsoever. In this case (about a month ago) it was being woke up at 2 am by some guard to tell me I was being transferred. TRANSFERRED???

It wasn't until I got on the bus that I was informed we were going to the medical camp about an hour and a half away. So now I was REALLY confused, because I hadn't had an epileptic seizure in almost 6 months. Then, when we arrived I found out that this wasn't only a medical camp, but also a Reception center. (Please refer to chap. 12 entitled "What its like to be stripped of your identity" of my future book. . . so as to fully grasp the tone of my voice right now.) Then upon seeing the medical nurse she asked if i knew why i was here, to which i replied no. OKAY GET THIS!!!!

Six months ago I had put in a sick call form to see the doc about a growth that felt like a ball bearing behind my left nipple. He suggested that it was a temporary gland of some form but that they would scan it -- AT THAT CAMP -- the following week.

(Sorry we got cut off)

The next week I was called to medical and sat there for 4 hours, but was never seen. So they said I would be rescheduled, however, I was never called again, and the lump under my nipple had long since disappeared.

So now, 6 months later Ive been at this hell hole for a month, already got the scan done the first week I was here, have lost 7 pounds, had 4 seizures, and just found out (3weeks later) from this medical dept. that the results of the scan had never been requested from the nearby hospital they took me to to get the work done in the first place. Thats why im still here. This should have easily been a one week event with me returning to my original camp.

Sorry so sloppy, but my tablet was confiscated in Sept. because it wouldn't connect properly during a raid. So they sent it back. So I had to type this within the 15 min. they give us on the kiosk.

Hope things are going better for you all, my readers. If not, feel free to do some venting to let off some steam. I'll be more than happy to listen. . . or read.
