Dear Jason,

Hello!! So nice to hear from you ~~again~~<sup>again</sup>... it's been too long! I'm really happy you enjoyed my post "Consider the Chicken". I'm not sure the view I expressed is so unpopular — I sure hope it's not! — but I do wish we might all come to value the lives of other animals enough that we stop killing them for food. I get that we ARE animals and most certainly part of the animal food chain as meat-loving omnivores, but... yeah. I dunno. We have this consciousness that, for better or for worse, produces a sense of morality that no other animal seems to share to any great extent. We understand the pain we cause, and we know it's not really necessary, at least not here and now. So... why do we carry on?

I'd love to get your feedback on other blog posts in the future... any chance of that? Take care of yourself.

Your Friend,

Dymitr
