Instructor Comments and Grade:

Four Reasons to Write a Business Plan

- To raise money for your business. Potential investors or lenders want a written business plan before they give you money. ...
- To make sound decisions. ...
- To help you identify any potential weaknesses. ...
- To understand who your customers are.

Para Legal Unlimited Services has potential. You did a well thought out analysis. Your business plan was thorough and informative. Your breakeven point looks accurate and profitable. Maximum points were given for college-level writing and professionalism. Overall, you did a great job Michael.
