

Double Down on the Unnecessary

How is it that I been locked up 27 years in the State of Georgia. But according to my criminal record, when a family member checked it. I had charges from 2004 and 2009 where I had been arrested in Mississippi and Fulton County (Georgia) two different states. Despite my body has been in Georgia State Prison since ~~Aug 14~~ November 14, 1998. This is a conversation to have.

I never understood why the Parole board kept denying me on either or/ one I have done enough time or the nature of my crime, which will never change. However, due to new evidence I have discovered through my family member, could be in reality the problems as to why I am locked up still. Consequently the criminal record is saying I been locked up before.

When I have not. Records are very important. So having false information, can lead to ^{the} wrong decision surrounding my parole. Some people don't look at date. They are quick to look at a charge. Some people don't care to go into depths of any situation. Its too much like right.

Currently I am in the process of having a local and nationally background check. I cannot tell no more surprises. The first surprise ~~was~~ was my DOB and SSN was involved in fraud. Then my $1800 stimulus check was deposited into someone's bank account. Now my name is involved in other criminal arrests. When my only charge is murder. With this in mind, this makes me look like a repeated offender, when I am not. Clearly another systematic failure for me as I come up for parole October 01, 2024.

As a result of total failure, for this reason I had to get a copy of proof of incarceration. So I can prove that I been in Georgia's prison system since 1998.
