The California Governor is releasing thousands of inmates that were serving life sentences or the courts are taking inmates back to court and dismissing their life sentences and letting them go home. However they are refusing to let out sex offenders even those like me that has served over three decades in prison. I am now well into my sixties. I have literally lost the drive to be with women. I no longer feel anything bad toward them. I just want to be able to die in peace and not cause any women harm, nor to make them uneasy about me if I will reoffend. I want to be able to give to people not be on the take any more. I think I would be very successful if I could be given the chance to be trusted in society. I would even be willing to be castrated in the event that I would be given another chance in society. What can I do to show that I can be an asset to you guys out there.
