

Dear Dr. J. McNeal,

Fall 2024 Statistics of Populations
12-5-2024

Class starts with 'Put on your thinking cap!
We are now in a statistics habitat.

A 'Jury of my peers' locked me up & threw away the key
Now the Calif. Racial Justice Act will statistically set me free

The is the Dr. pharmaceuticals go to see
McNeal teaches math as best as can be

Intelligence found where its thought not to exist.
This real rehabilitation talk must continue to persist

His style of lecture is both intense & humble
It makes mind's empire of doubt crumble

Statistics, a language so universal
Dr. Mac helps math anxiety be a full reversal

The Dr. you go & see, McNeal's the name
He puts you light years ahead in the statistics game

Taking this class behind prison walls while doing time
It's a mental Mount Everest you will climb

A precise surgeon with statistical math?
So great a professor, he makes class a mental mind bath

Answering questions in class, a dopamine rush?
Along the way, every self-doubt I crush

Statistics is a language with its own native tongue
Completing the course, takes you the highest mental rung

The Doc knows as a minority you must
Push 2 times as hard to achieve & kick up dust

His teaching style is the Stanford Experiment in reverse
Your mind can overcome the thought most adverse

To lift the entire team up is a very skilled trait
Only done by all the ones who are great

Teaches you how to conquer a self-doubting mind
To be blessed with a Prof like Dr. McNeal is hard to find

Here today this correlation is causation
As we've been push to a self vindication

You actually learn stats & it's beyond a reasonable doubt
We've been taught 'How can I figure this out?'

You've shown me math is more than a grade
Looking at all of life's squared progress I made

He's helped the entire class learn & inherit
Compassionate math rehabs the mind & repair it

Teaching at a riveting pace, then says, 'Let it sink in'
We've learned standard deviation, a psychological link-in

The Prof. put us on teams & watched the show
Then pushed us to learn, work & grow!

Dr. J. McNeal, Thank you for the inspiration, you are
A real-life action hero, statistical superstar

Formulas exponentially accumulate, like really compound
This Dr. has made us our best pound for pound

To overcome math anxiety, so deeply rooted
I'm mentally stronger now, so well suited!

He's guided us to statistically fit in with the best of 'em
We can now blend in college with the rest of 'em.

You've instilled a larger slice of inspiration & desire
To achieve goals in life, by how high the brain can aspire

A high class act, diverse: black, white, hispanic & Punjabi
Solving correlation equations, in a streak hotter than wasabi

Respectfully Submitted,

To Whom It May Concern:

I am writing on behalf of Mr. Michael M. Singh. I've had the pleasure of working with Mr. Singh as his instructor in the Southwestern College (Chula Vista, CA) course, "Leadership and Supervision" (BUS 212).

As a regular contributor in my class, Mr. Singh demonstrated a breadth of knowledge on the subject matter. I've been impressed by his skill for arguing his position persuasively on a range of topics.

Having reviewed what Mr. Singh has done to-date on his business plan, I believe he possesses clarity in his sense of purpose and his understanding of the many different aspects of his intended business start-up. Keeping abreast on issues in the marketplace, Mr. Singh revealed a comprehensive vision for his work.

An intelligent and conscientious student for all aspects of business, I believe Mr. Singh will make a significant contribution wherever he finds himself.

Please feel free to contact me with any questions concerning my recommendation of Mr. Singh. I may be contacted through the Southwestern College, Business School.

Yours sincerely,

Prof. Richard Ross

Dear Members of the Board of Parole Hearings,

My name is Dr. Jaime McNeal, and I am an adjunct instructor teaching at Donovan Correctional Facility as part of a Restorative Justice initiative for Southwestern College. I am drawn to this program because of my belief in the transformative power of education, particularly for individuals who are committed to improving their lives through academic achievement.

This semester, I had the privilege of teaching Introduction to Statistics, a course designed to challenge students with its analytical rigor and real-world applications. Despite its reputation as a challenging subject, statistics provides students with powerful tools to interpret data and solve problems.

Michael Singh is the gentleman of the class. Anyone who meets him can tell within the first few minutes that Mr. Singh is a curious, discerning intellectual. He is curious about the world, is a voracious reader, and is always sharing his insights with me and the class. One moment that stands out is somehow we started talking about The Stanford Prison Experiment, which is when I usually share about Philip Zimbardo, the world-renowned psychologist. What I did not know that day is that Zimbardo had recently died. But, Singh knew. He is bright, and his notes are legendary.

Michael's intellectual curiosity is unmatched. His insightful contributions during discussions, such as his knowledge of Zimbardo's legacy, have enriched our class. His meticulous notes and thoughtful engagement make him a standout student and an asset to any academic setting.

For these, and several other reasons, I wholly recognize Michael Singh as a valuable contributor to our learning community. His participation and profile in class should be considered alongside other more comprehensive insights to form a complete profile of his worthiness to proceed through the parole board hearing process.

If you have any further questions, I would be happy to provide additional clarity and insight from my perspective. I can be reached at jmcneal@swccd.edu.

Respectfully,

Dr. Jaimes McNeal, PhD
