

I HAVE FINALLY FINISHED MY BOOK !!!

I have not posted on here in MONTHS because I have been working on a book. The writing of the book was very therapeutic for me because I got to share a lot of the bizarre world I have been living in for the last 20 years of my life. As I have said in previous posts, I use to vent all the time about the circumstances of my incarceration and my original blog evolved into nothing more than a complaint session. Who wants to read that all the time? Right? So, I channeled all my frustrations into a book which I hope will help protect children.

I am very pleased with what Amazon has said: "What if the key to protecting children from predators came from a man who has lived among them for over twenty years? Joseph Dickey is not a psychologist or law enforcement professional. He is a federal inmate, a man convicted of sex offenses who has steadfastly maintained his innocence. From his unique and harrowing vantage point inside the prison, he has become an unlikely, self-taught expert on the very population society fears most. This book is the culmination of his two decades of informal research. It is a raw, unflinching, and unfiltered look into the minds of convicted child predators. If you are looking for a sanitized, academic analysis, this book is not for you. But if you are ready for a stark, honest, and unprecedented look into one of society's darkest corners to better protect the ones you love, proceed to purchase now"

The Chomologist (Observations of the Behaviors, Characteristics, and Beliefs of Child Predators) By: Joseph Dickey

Now with my book being finished and published, I can hopefully get back to blogging on this site. Over the years this site has provided me with a wonderful way to connect with the outside world. I have met some very interesting people through this site and have poured my heart out concerning the struggles I have faced being incarcerated in a Federal Prison. Finally after 20 years of fighting the system, I see a light at the end of the tunnel. There are two huge Supreme Court cases which will hopefully open the door for me to undo this nightmare I have been living. The funny thing about blessings is sometimes you have to be prepared to receive them before they are given to you. Before this point in my life I was not ready to receive any type of blessing. I was bitter, angry, and full of hate for the wrongs I perceived were done to me. Now in my old age, I do not dwell on the wrongs, I dwell on the lessons I have learned from the journey the "wrongs" have provided me. No, I am not now some kind of Buddhist Monk, I am still the same old flawed person who can get very angry at times. However, these days I am a lot slower to anger and a lot quicker to look for something to learn from this crazy journey called life.

What have I learned over the last 20 years? Many things I will share in future posts. The most important thing I have learned is this....tough times pass but tough people last (yes, I stole this quote from Tulsa King. LOL)

I have no idea if anyone is out there who will see this post but if you are reading this....thank you for taking the time to read it. I will be posting on here more often in the future. Also, on the next page I have provided a sneak peek at my book.

JOSEPH DICKEY

THE CHOMOLOGIST

Observations Of the Behaviors, Characteristics, and Beliefs of Child Predators

THE CHOMOLOGIST

To understand the predator, you have to enter his world.

For over two decades, Joseph Dickey—a man convicted of federal sex offenses who maintains his innocence—has had a front-row seat to the minds of the men society fears most. From within the prison walls, he has written a raw, unflinching field guide to the predator's psyche. It is not an academic analysis; it is a direct report from the inside.

In his own words:

"This is not a psychological study. It is not politically correct. I'm writing this book for one reason: to help you recognize the signs of a predator so you can prevent children from being victimized. I'm going to introduce you to the men I live with—the ones who look like your grandfather, your pastor, or your friendly neighbor. I'll show you the 'messed-up statues' of their minds, their delusional excuses, and the red flags they can't hide."

This book is a weapon. It is a controversial, unsettling, and vital look into a dark world, written from a perspective no professional could ever gain. Its purpose is not to make you comfortable, but to make you aware—to teach you how to see the patterns of behavior before it's too late.
