

It is my moral obligation coupled with both humility and great respect to address the parole board regarding Michael Singh.

Mr. Singh is one of my former students from Southwestern Community College who attended several of my Oral Communication classes at Donovan State prison. I am an adjunct professor, and I teach at several different colleges in the San Diego region along with coaching several Speech and Debate teams. One of my attributes is finding talented students who demonstrate the ability to both speak with confidence and debate persuasively. I can tell you there are three incarcerated students in my 4 years teaching at RJD that have stood out above the rest. Michael Singh is one of them.

In the classroom, Micheal Singh displayed intelligence, integrity, and discipline. In addition, Michael often assisted other students to help them succeed as well. Mr. Singh displayed intelligence by completing all the reading and writing assignments on time. In addition, Michael often asked pertinent questions during lectures. Michael never compromised his integrity. His research produced primary, credible, and crystallized sources. Michael represented himself professionally, punctually, and well organized every class period. All signs of a well-disciplined student. Finally, Michael has a gift that quite frankly lacks in most college students. That gift is his ability to work with and assist his colleagues in the classroom. I am certain Michael Singh will continue his vocation once he is paroled.

In conclusion, I am honored, privileged, and morally obligated to provide my recommendation to The Parole Board that he be granted parole. Michael's intellect is boundless. His integrity is sound. His discipline is rooted in humility, professionalism, and respect.
